God save our gracious Queen,
Long live our noble Queen,
God save The Queen.
Send her victorious,
Happy and glorious,
Long to reign over us:
God save The Queen.

O Lord our God, arise,
Scatter our enemies,
And make them fall;
Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks;
On thee our hopes we fix:
God save us all.

Page 6 The British National Anthem in its present form dates back to the eighteenth century. This practice soon spread to other theatres, and the custom of greeting monarchs with the song as he or she entered a place of public entertainment was thus established. In September 1745 the 'Young Pretender' to the British Throne, Prince Charles Edward Stuart, defeated the army of King George II at Prestonpans, near Edinburgh. The words and tune are anonymous, and may date back to the seventeenth century. On official occasions, only the first verse is usually sung. There is no authorised version of the National Anthem as the words are a matter of tradition. The British tune has been used in other countries. 'God Save The King' was a patriotic song first publicly performed in London in 1745, which came to be known as the National Anthem at the beginning of the nineteenth century. In total, around 140 composers, including Beethoven, Haydn and Brahms, have used the tune in their compositions. In a fit of patriotic fervour after news of Prestonpans had reached London, the leader of the band at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, arranged 'God Save The King' for performance after a play. European visitors to Britain in the eighteenth century noticed the advantage of a country possessing such a recognised martial symbol. The words used today are those sung in 1745, substituting 'Queen' for 'King' where appropriate.
